

SECURITY POLICY

Savannah Energy is committed, with appropriate support from local governments and authorities, to provide security support and conduct its operations with minimum risk to all personnel and company assets

Savannah will always abide by local laws and regulations with regards to the use of fire arms. Savannah Petroleum will continuously strive to ensure a safe and secure work place, free from risk of injury, violence, criminal, hostile or malicious acts.

Savannah, in the country of operations must ensure that security issues are properly addressed by implementing a country/project specific security management system including;

- Planning and implementing security measures, that are linked to the predicted threat level
- Establish a security and emergency plan to minimise the risk to personnel and potential damage to company assets
- Training on best security practices to all employees, sub-contractors and security personnel
- Monitoring security measures for continuous improvements as well as reviewing security incidents for immediate corrective measures
- To provide sufficient resources to maintain an adequate security protection
- To develop, regularly test, review and update adequate security contingency plans and practices
- Report and investigate all security incidents and record and report any credible allegations
- Identify all security risks before any project commences
- Engaging appropriate information sharing with government agencies and communities

Andrew Knott, CEO
July 2020